

Connie Chan is definitely building relationships with the D.C. establishment, since she is raising significant donations from D.C. lobbyists, is spending significant time raising money in D.C, and is endorsed by quite a few establishment figures who have played a key role blocking Congress from regulating Big Tech and AI. She's doing a better job in that regard.

I appreciate that Supervisor Chan has worked with Mayor Lurie on the budget. I've served on the Board of Supervisors Budget Committee and as Chair of the Senate Budget Committee, and I know how important that collaboration is. Unlike Chan's strong allies and endorsers Aaron Peskin and Dean Preston, who thrived on conflict, she recognizes the importance of having a good relationship with the Mayor's Office.
